To the Head of the Faculty of Linguistics and Translation:

With this letter of appreciation, we would like to thank the Faculty of Linguistics and Translation of Chelyabinsk State University, and the department of translation in particular, for the excellent education and training you provide to your students. One of your graduates, Maria Andreeva, is a Russian language project manager and senior planning officer here at JPD Systems, a global translation company located in the USA. The Russian translation projects managed by Maria have received high marks from customers, such as the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO). As a planning officer, Maria coordinates the work of about 100 translators and editors as part of a major translation contract with a French academic publisher.

We have also worked with several other graduates of your department as freelancers and have always been pleased with the high level of training and professionalism.

We are currently working to expand our Russian translation program and in that context, we look forward to deepening our collaboration with CSU. Specifically, we look forward to implementing the internship agreement we have with the university and to providing freelance translation opportunities to your graduates.

Yours respectfully,
